An Extraordinary Elopement.

The Liverpool Mercury of March 4 says :-The denoument of an extraordinary elopement case took place on board the Allan steamer Moravian on Phursday last. In the afternoon the steamer was leaving the Mersey with a full complement of passengers for Portland. Just as she got under way a river gig was seen approaching in all haste. In the bow of the boat wis seen an aged man, who gesticulated franteally to those on board the steamer to stop. The boat got alongside the steamer, and in a short time two of its occupants-a man about sixty years of age and a young man of twentytwo-clambered on board the Moravian.

The officers were naturally surprised at seeing the steamer boarded in this fashion; but, noticing that the old man was in trouble, they received him courteously and listened to his tale, which was to the effect that his wife-a woman of forty eight and the mother of grownup children-had eloped with a young man of twenty two; that they were on board the Moravian en route for America; and the deserted husband and his son demanded that the captain should send the runaways on shore. While the captain was explaining that the law gave him no such power the runaway wife happened to pass along the deck near where the group was discussing the point. She recognized her husband. A fit of repentance seized her. She at once forgot her new love and now only thought of the old. Exclaiming: "On, John, are you here?" she embraced her husband and kissed him. Her sou, too, she saluted in a most affectionate way. But while these preliminaries to a reconciliation were going on, the faithless wife's companion made his appearance on the scene, and placedly asked what "it was all about." descried husband implored his fickle spouse to return to her home in Wednesbury. This she consented to do, but made it a sine qua non that the companion of her flight should be al lowed to return with her. The husband accepted the terms thus dictated. The master of the Moravian, sociog that arrangements had been e me to, facilitated the return to the shore of the troublesome party who had for a time disturbed the decorum observed on board his steamer. When the party arrived at the stage they were jeered by a crowd who had heard of the strange elopement and the wonderful reconciliation. Wife and husband walked arm in arm lovingly along the stage, and the "lover," as if to make atonement for his wrong doing, walked meekly behind earrying the luggage. (JARDEN SEEDS—We are in receipt of our usual Spring supply of Garden Seeds, comprising all the old and well known and some new varieties. Our purchases of Seeds are
